

Quantifiers:

Hello and welcome back, in this lesson we will be looking at quantifiers. These can be a word or a phrase which is used before a noun to indicate the amount or quantity.

Some:

The word 'some' can be used when there is a little, a few or small number or amount of something. Some is usually used within positive sentences for both countable and uncountable nouns.

1, 2, 3, 4

Recap:

Count nouns can be counted as one or more. Non count nouns can't be counted as they express a group.

Examples of 'some':

I have some friends in America.

Some people

I drink some wine.

Use in a question:

'Some' is used in a question, when we expect a positive answer. (Yes)

Would you like some coffee?

Can I borrow some money?

Any:

The word 'any' is used for objects that are one, small or all. 'Any' is used for both countable and uncountable nouns and is used within negative sentences.

Examples of 'any':

He doesn't have any food.

I never do any homework.

I never have any money.

Use in a question:

'Any' can be used in a question when a sentence is grammatically positive, but the meaning of the sentence is negative.

Do you have any money?

Do you have any idea?

Do you know any people?

Much:

'Much' is used to express that there is a large quantity of something and only used with uncountable nouns. Only really used for negative sentences.

Examples of 'much':

I have too much food.

I ran too much.

They don't have much money.

Use in a question:

How much is this?

Is this too much?

Many

'Many' is used to express that there is a large quantity of something and only used with countable nouns. Only really used for negative sentences.

Examples of 'many':

I don't have many shoes.

I have many friends.

I made many mistakes.

Use in a question:

How many people?

Are there too many cats?

Other quantifiers:

One – used if there is a single object or person.
(One apple)

Couple/pair – used if there are two of something.
(A couple of drinks, please!)
(a pair of socks)

Few – used if there are three of something
(A few rounds of golf)

Recap: wild animals

Wild animals are found in the country side, such as:

B__r

Eag_e

H_re

Squi__el

Ba_ger

Let's use these animals with the quantifiers:

Some eagles were seen on the mountain.

There aren't any bears in England.

How many badgers did you see?

How much time does a squirrel spend in the tree?
